Editorial Notes.

The persistency with which the Ohio Democrats avoid discussing tariff or currency this year is quite remarkable, especially in view of the fact that they have silver their chief issue only three months ago.

Towne, Bryan, and the other silver orators are still compelled to seek county fairs in Arkansas and Tennessee as a place in which they may give vent to their suppressed emotions on the crime of '73. There is a rumor afloat, however, that Towne proposes to talk silver in Ohio or bust. Look out, Colonel O'Myers!

Evidence of business prosperity continues to be found in the reduction of the number of business failures. Bradstreet's Trade Review reports the number of failures last week as only 196, compared with 237 in the preceding week, 279 in the corresponding week of last year, 280 in the corresponding week of 1896, and 349 in the corresponding week of 1895.

The farmers of the country will probably be interested in the fact that the August (1897) importations of wool under the new protective tariff were but a little more than half those of August, 1896, under the free-trade tariff then in operation, and that the importation of manufactures of wool in August, 1897, were less than one-sixth those of August, 1896, in value.

Wheat has again "dropped below the dollar mark," to the great delight of the silverites, who cannot bear to see a bushel of wheat worth two ounces of silver, when only a year ago an ounce of silver and a bushel of wheat were at the same price. The fluctuations of the white metal during the year are sufficient to prove the danger of attempting to make it a money metal on the plan of the Democrats of 1896.

The Canton, Ohio, Free Silver Club has decided to abandon the Democracy and cast its lot with the Populist party. This club, which was denominated the "Bryan Free-Silver Club of Canton, Ohio," was one of the strongest silver organizations in the State last year, and an active supporter of Bryan's Presidential candidacy. Its renunciation of the Democracy and transfer of allegiance to the Populist party is therefore the more significant.

Free-traders, who feared that American manufacturers would languish because of the fact that the supply of "raw material" was to be cut off by the protective tariff law recently enacted, will perhaps be interested to know that raw material for use in the manufactures imported in the month of August, 1897, under the Dingley tariff law was 30 per cent. greater than in the corresponding month of last year under the Wilson law.

At the risk of causing pain to the free-trade advocates who have insisted that the adoption of a protective system would destroy our foreign market for American manufactures, their attention is respectfully called to the fact that the exportation of domestic manufactures from the United States in the first month under the Dingley law was nearly two million dollars more than in the corresponding month of the preceding year under the Wilson law. When to this is added the fact that the September exportations of domestic merchandise of all kinds were twenty millions greater under the Dingley law than those of September, 1896, under the Wilson law, it will be seen that the dismal predictions of the loss of our foreign market by the enactment of a protective tariff are not being rapidly realized.

The October statement of the Treasury Department shows that the money in circulation to-day is, in round numbers, $100,000,000 in excess of one year ago. Curiously, more than one-half of this increase is in gold. The following table, issued by the Treasury Department on October 1st, shows the money in circulation October 1st, 1897, compared with October 1st, 1896:

Our Washington Letter.

[Correspondence of The Journal.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 1, 1897. The general opinion here among politicians is that the recent charges brought against the administration and Senator Hanna, with reference to the sale of the Union Pacific Railroad, have reacted against the instigators in a way not beneficial to their interests. Statements were published in the New York World and other Democratic organs to the effect that Senator Hanna had made an arrangement with the "money powers" of the East last year for the purchase by them at an inside figure of the Union Pacific, for which he had received enormous campaign contributions. The falsity of this statement is apparent upon its face, but a little investigation into the matter discloses facts which make it still further react upon the authors of the story and upon the Democratic party. In the first place, the sale of this road was ordered last year by the preceding Democratic administration, and the present administration is doing nothing but carrying out the plans and arrangements practically complete by its predecessor; and in the second place it is idle to talk about inside figures and favoritism, for the reason that the road is to be sold to the highest bidder, whoever he may be. In order to prevent the property from going under the hammer for a less amount than would indemnify the Government, an arrangement was made with certain parties that the sale should be started at a certain figure, but of course this does not prevent others from bidding higher, and as much higher as the competition for the ownership of the road demands. A particular point of the so-called "deal" was made by the Democrats in Ohio, and in the attempt to prejudice the voters against Senator Hanna as the prime instigator of the scheme copies of Cincinnati papers containing the article were distributed broadcast over the whole State, in the hope of catching the eye of people who would not know whether the report was false or true.

Senator Hanna himself made a prompt and vigorous denial of the charge in a speech recently delivered at Cleveland, in which he said: "The facts are that I never heard of the measure or the 'syndicate' or anything about it until early in July last, one year after this alleged plot was laid bare. I do not even know who are the members of the syndicate; I never had any conversation with any of them in regard to it and I never was called upon by my vote or influence to say one word in regard to the sale. It was a contract made on the part of the Government by Grover Cleveland's administration, and the only part of it relating to this administration is that the contract has been agreed to on the part of the present administration on the understanding that the syndicate should give five million dollars more for it than under the terms made by the Cleveland administration. That is all I know about it; the rest is a lie." This is vigorous language but it is fully warranted by the slanderous and utterly groundless accusations made against Mr. Hanna.

"The re-organization committee has in no way been shown the slightest favor or given the least advantage," said Attorney-General McKenna, whose word cannot be questioned in the matter. "The road will be sold to the highest responsible bidder, without any reference to his personality. If a bid of $51,000,000 is made, and the re-organization committee does not increase its offer to $52,000,000, the property will go to the parties making the new proposal. The guaranteed bid was obtained to prevent the possibility of disastrous loss. If this guarantee did not exist, an opportunity would be afforded for bidders to form a combination and offer a comparatively low figure for the road.

"The increase in the re-organization committee's bid is easily explained. Subsequent to the filing of the original guarantee bid of $45,754,050 a number of overlooked contentions were discovered. These included the bridge across the Missouri River at Omaha and a number of money considerations. The bridge mortgage amounts to about $1,200,000, the lien on the Omaha and Council Bluffs division to more than $2,000,000, and other contentions brought the aggregate to nearly $4,000,000.

"In view of these contentions the decrees of the courts were unsatisfactory and papers were prepared for an appeal. At that time the re-organization committee increased its bid by $4,245,941 to cover these additional sums, thus raising the total bid to even $50,000,000. In all other respects the decrees were just and satisfactory." Attorney-General McKenna expressly stipulates that there was no formal agreement made between the Government and the re-organization committee. The guarantee bid was arranged by letters between former Attorney-General Harmon and special counsel for the committee. The agreement, he says, goes no further than to provide for the appearance of the Government in suits brought to foreclose the first mortgage bonds and to bring suit for foreclosing its own. The sale of the property, he says, must necessarily be under the direction of the courts, with the whole world for bidders.

"The fact must not be overlooked," said Judge McKenna, "that the Government's lien is a second one, subject to a first mortgage of $33,000,000. The advantage the Government has secured is that at the sale under the decrees of foreclosure there will be a bid for the roads of $50,000,000 over and above the first mortgage, and in addition the benefit of absolute freedom of competition at the sale. The Government may secure its whole claim through a higher bid. It is sure of $50,000,000, and this amount, in connection with payments already made, will pay the principal of the debt twice over."

President of the United States' Private Secretary.

Cured by the Use of the Greatest of Remedies, Dr. Greene's Nervura.

Washington's Superintendent of Police, Major W. G. Moore, Cured by the Wonderful Dr. Greene's Nervura. Was President Johnson's Private Secretary, and Formerly Secretary to E. M. Stanton, President Lincoln's Secretary of War.

MAJOR W. G. MOORE, SUPERINTENDENT OF POLICE OF WASHINGTON, D. C.

Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy keeps right on curing the most noted and famous among our people as well as those in the ordinary walks of life. We read continually about the cures of well-known prominent people by this wonderful health-giver, Dr. Greene's Nervura; but where one such eminent citizen, statesman or public official is cured, there are thousands upon thousands of cures constantly being effected among the common people everywhere. The common people make up the great mass of our citizens, and it is they, the business man, clerk, salesman, mechanic, laborer, and the women of our land, the toiling housewife, saleswoman, shop and factory girl, who receive the most cures and best know and appreciate the great blessing of health and strength which Dr. Greene's Nervura always brings to the weak, nervous, run-down, sick and debilitated.

The recent cure by Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy of Major W. G. Moore, Superintendent of Police of Washington and District of Columbia, is of the utmost importance inasmuch as Maj. Moore is one of the best known men in this country, he having been confidential secretary to a President of the United States—President Johnson, and also secretary to E. M. Stanton, President Lincoln's Secretary of War. The cure of so well-known and famous a man is a guarantee to the people that Dr. Greene's Nervura cures, and his written recommendation to the people who are sick, suffering or out of health in any way to use Dr. Greene's Nervura if they wish to be sure of a cure, will cause everyone who reads his words to immediately try this grand cure of remedies.

Major W. G. Moore, Superintendent of Police of Washington, D. C., writes: "I feel to say that I have found comfort and relief in the use of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and recommend it as good for the circulation and digestion."

Major W. G. Moore, Superintendent of Police of Washington, D. C., writes: "If you are sick, suffering, out of order, run-down or do not feel just right, get Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy immediately. It will give you new, strong, vigorous nerves, pure blood and sound and perfect health. It will make you look and feel ten years younger, and give you a youthful zest and enjoyment of life. Don't wait—take it now and get well. Dr. Greene's Nervura has more recommendations and medical authority behind it than any other medicine in the world. Physicians endorse and prescribe it; hospitals and dispensaries use it; and it is the prescription and discovery of the well-known Dr. Greene of 24 Temple Place, Boston, Mass., who is the most successful physician in curing disease. Dr. Greene can be consulted free by all—there being no charge for consultation, examination or advice either personally or by letter."

A Very Short Potato Crop. Not since 1892 has the potato crop of the United States proved so nearly a failure, says the American Agriculturist in its final report of the yield of 1897. Compared with the liberal crop of last year there is an apparent falling off of nearly 30 per cent. in tonnage, and the quality of the whole is greatly deficient. County and township returns from all the leading potato growing States show the yield of potatoes to be 174,000,000 bushels, against 254,000,000 in '96, 286,000,000 in '95, 165,000,000 in '94, and only 155,000,000 in the short crop of '92. The average rate of yield per acre is placed at 64 bushels, taking the country at large, against 86 bushels in '96, 89 in '95 and 62 in '92. The reasons for disaster to the potato crop of 1897 are about as varied as a multiplicity of causes could make them. Standing out with more prominence than any other two factors are blight and rot, as a result of extremes of weather conditions. Excessive rainfall here and there, failure of germination, later serious drought, rust, scab, insects, etc., have all been prominently in evidence, though complaints of this character are less general than of the two first named. While the yield in bushels is small, the quality is almost deficient. This is true of most, if not all States. The crop is best in the Northwest. Such portions of Canada as make a specialty of potatoes, notably Ontario and the Maritime Provinces, show a general but not serious shortage.

The Return of a Forty-Niner. Amos Weed, one of the pioneers of '49, has just returned to his home in Merrimac, Mass., after an absence of 48 years. Mr. Weed sailed from T. wharf, Boston, with 200 others, on the ship Leonora, Feb. 4, 1849. The party formed themselves under the name of the New England Trading and Mining Association. They sailed for San Francisco by the way of Cape Horn, and arrived at their destination July 5. After a short stop at San Francisco the vessel sailed up to Benicia, about 40 miles up the river, where the association was disbanded and the members scattered, all going to the mines. Mr. Weed started his claim and worked it successfully. He went to live in San Francisco, and later, in 1862, he went to San Diego, where he helped to build the first houses which were erected in the city. Mr. Weed was a witness and a participant in many of the stirring scenes of the newly-opened country. He witnessed the famous duel between David C. Broderick and David S. Terry, and attended the funeral of the victim. Mr. Weed has a mother residing in Merrimac, who is almost 100 years of age, and he comes back to his native home after his long absence to care for her. The old Forty-niner was 22 years of age when he left home, and he now returns at the age of 70. The present season has up to date been the most unsuccessful for many years in the history of the New England mackerel fishery. The catch thus far reached is but about 9,000 barrels, while last year at this time it was over 50,000 barrels. From other countries come the same reports. A cough is a danger signal of worse troubles to come. Cure the cough and prevent its results by using Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

Mt. Desert Correspondence.

SOUTH WEST HARBOR, Oct. 22, 1897. Sch Harry C. Chester of East Machias, which recently went ashore on Thompson ledge near Baker's light with a cargo of lumber, when bound to Boston, has been taken into the John L. Stanley wharf and beached. The captain entered a protest by lawyer E. Webster French, who appointed a board of survey composed of Capt. J. L. Stanley, Capt. W. R. Keene and Capt. James S. Fernald. They examined the vessel and found the keel badly damaged and twisted, and several holes chafed through on the starboard side of the hull. The vessel fills at every tide. The lumber was ordered discharged and the vessel taken to some railway for repairs. She went ashore at 2 a. m., at low water, about one half mile from the Cranberry Isles light saving station and was not seen at the station until 6 o'clock. Had she been seen by them earlier, and anchored, much damage could have been saved.

The easterly gale of yesterday tumbled up a very heavy sea this morning and it was very rough in the western way. Steamer Cimbrina while passing out through this place bound for Bangor experienced very rough water. People who were on the shore watching her report that her bow when she pitched into a sea would at times appear entirely submerged, and when she rose on a sea some twenty feet of her keel could be seen clear of the water. The heavy sea at the sea wall was very grand.

Twins arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel King Oct. 21st. Mr. King will in a few years have additional help in his painting business. They are boys.

Steamer New Brunswick is picking up a good freight and a good list of passengers at this landing each way and will be well patronized if she stands by us during the winter, and will surely get the bulk of the business next season. Every winter the Mount Desert and Frank Jones are taken off the route the last of December and we are left without a boat until spring, unless some local party places a boat temporarily on the route. It is now reported that the Frank Jones will be placed on the route between Bar Harbor and Machias, connecting with the train at the former place.

A heavy forest fire has been raging for two days at this place near the head of the harbor on Manset side and at times it was quite near some of the cottages, but a large force of men are constantly in the woods fighting it night and day and have it well under control.

Miss Fannie King has gone to Boston for medical treatment.

Mr. Loring Kimball of Goose Cove, on the south part of the island, lost his barn by fire last Thursday night. He lost two horses, one cow and a hog, and the finishing lumber for his house which was stored in the barn.

Messrs. Haynes and Newman and one more returned in sch. Nellie from a bird hunt at Isle au Haut. They bagged about 40 sea fowls, and found a ready market for them here. Stur. Frank Jones, while making a landing at N. E. Harbor a few days ago, carried away one corner of the wharf, which was a nearly new and substantial structure. New piling were gotten out, 40 feet in length, and the corner rebuilt.

A Rival of Klondike.

Advices from Sitka, Alaska, report the discoveries of gold at Cook Inlet. Ninety miners coming from the newly discovered placer diggings have brought $200,000 in gold nuggets and dust to the capital of the Territory. The largest nugget is worth a little less than $100. The miners are reticent about their affairs, indicating that they desire to keep secret the exact location of their claims. The discoveries, however, make it certain that this district and Prince William's Sound and the Copper River valley will divide attention with the Klondike next year. Cook Inlet has been designated the garden spot of Alaska. It puts in from the North Pacific Ocean about five hundred miles northwest from Sitka and washes the foothills of the Alaska range on the northwest and the lowlands of the Kenai Mountains on the southeast. It is known that all this region is admirably adapted for agricultural and stock raising industries, that is, from an Alaskan standpoint. The gold discoveries will for a time have its value.

Affairs In Costa Rica.

Special Correspondence of The Journal.

SAN JOSE DEL INTERIOR, Sept. 11, 1897. (One would hardly think that hospitals were needed in this Arcadian valley, where contagious diseases are almost unknown. Yellow fever seldom climbs to this altitude, (3808 feet above the sea) and the oldest inhabitant can remember few seasons of epidemic. But Yellow Jack has been here two or three times, and after the last calamitous visitation, some 40 years ago, the charitable association known as El Junta de Caridad determined that no future epidemic should find the people unprepared and the sick without a home. To this end they built the great hospital, San Juan de Dios, the largest building in San Jose and one of the most notable in Central America. The cost of its erection was defrayed from a fund in the hands of the Junta and from a gift of 100,000 pesos; and to this day the same means maintain it. The charitable association is by no means a poor one. It frequently happens that a young Costa Rican leaves a fat legacy to the Junta, to be used for sweet charity's work, or a living citizen contributes a few thousand to its store in acknowledgment of a heaven favor, such as the birth of a son, the recovery of a loved one from illness, or the successful outcome of some business venture. The expenses of "Saint John of God's" hospital are few, although since its doors were opened, (1852), no one has died of shelter, native or foreign, has ever been turned away. For many years Dr. John Hogan, of Philadelphia, gave his valuable services gratuitously as medical superintendent. The sick are few indeed in this hollow of the hills where the air is pure and sweet—a happy mean between tropic heat and the rigors of northern winters. The great white-painted structure on the road that leads to the cemetery is 350 feet long, including two wings each 100 feet square. The left wing is more than sufficient for the ordinary use of the hospital—the right wing being occasionally utilized for a prison for unrepentant persons charged with venial offenses. The few inmates are most in the lunatic wards, and nine-tenths of them are women. I suppose the reason is that while the people of tropical regions are not long-lived, as a rule, and seldom linger with chronic diseases, as at the North, the passions of love, hate, grief and jealousy, intensified by proximity to the burning sun, unsettle the mind more readily—especially among the weaker sex. It is a significant circumstance in all equatorial regions that the prisons contain more women than men; the latter mostly incarcerated for theft drunkenness and minor crimes, the former for the murder of a lover, husband, or female rival—the moving cause being jealousy and the agent poison, or the small stiletto which every woman of the middle and lower classes wears stuck in her hair or her waist-band. The only male lunatic just now in San Juan hospital has been there many years. This is an amusing case, though a hopeless one, his mind vaguely consisting in a belief that a multitude of capibaras (turkey buzzards) are after him, and all he wants with which to disperse them and secure perfect happiness, is a hat. Needless to say that hundreds of hats, of every style, age and condition, have been presented to him; but he tear up every one the instant he lays hand on it and clamors for more. The imaginary turkey buzzards keep him perpetually busy. Night and day they never cease pursuing each other through his disordered brain; while he hoots and howls and dashes at them, and pelts them with bits of plaster, rushing round and round the room and dispersing them in desperate fashion. The wonder is that more people are not mad on the subject of zopites! Here, as everywhere else in Spanish America, the carrion birds are protected by law from human assault, the penalty for injuring one being greater than that for house-breaking or horse-stealing. They are the scavengers provided by nature, and the better and therefore the under the region, the more vultures has wise Mother Nature provided. At the first peep of dawn you see them perched on the house-tops, the church steeples, the cemetery walls and every other available roosting place generally with bedraggled wings outstretched to dry. During the day they tumble awkwardly about the streets in search of garbage of every sort, and all is gist that comes to their mill, from a dead cat to the offal of the sewers. Their sight and scent is remarkably keen even uncanny. Before an ailing animal is dead, the vultures may be seen collecting from all directions, circling round and round until they alight near the expected prey. They are sometimes compelled to await the repletion of the miserable curs of the country, and fight noisily among themselves over some particularly filthy morsel; and afterwards, gorged and stupefied, they rest upon the roofs, occasionally regarding you with sleepy eyes, as if speculating how soon they may count upon your carcass. There are other homes for the sick and unfortunate which reflect great credit on San Jose. Among them is the leper's hospital, in a comfortable building furnished by the government; the lying-in hospital; the orphan's asylum for girls, amply provided for in the will of Dona Jeronima Fernandez de Montelegre; the hospital for incurables, especially designed for the aged poor; and the new idiot asylum. The last named institution was endowed by means of a lottery, conducted under government auspices, and is not only an ornament to the capital—a handsome building standing in the midst of well-kept grounds—but fills a long-felt want.

In an architectural point of view one of the finest buildings in San Jose is the University of Santo Tomas, founded as early as 1815. It has the usual professorships for various courses, and all needed equipments, and contains the National Library—some 6,000 volumes, scientific and miscellaneous. There are two other equally good colleges in little Costa Rica,

—the San Luis in Cartago, and the San Augustin in Heredia; besides a young ladies' seminary in San Jose, and another in Alajuela. There is also a Normal school in the capital, a School of Arts and Trades, a conservatory of music, and several night schools. Costa Rica's educational system, established and fostered by the government, maintains a free school in every town, with the dream in view of a country in which every citizen shall at least know how to read and write. At present only about 12 per cent. of the inhabitants are educated to that extent; but there is bright hope for the future, since the 280 so-called model schools, supported by the government, report an average daily attendance of 25,000 pupils—to say nothing of more than 100 private schools, including several kindergartens conducted on the German plan. The amended constitution somewhat ambiguously says: "Elementary instruction of both sexes is obligatory, free, and provided for by the government. Its immediate supervision shall be for the municipality; the supreme inspection for the executive. Every Costa Rican or foreigner is free to give or receive instruction in institutions which are not maintained at public expense."

Journalism, that important adjunct to popular education, is still attended with difficulties in the most progressive of these revolutionary Republics. At present three newspapers are published in San Jose—two dailies, La Republica and El Comercio, and one tri-weekly, called La Gaceta. They are all single sheets, about 18 inches by 12, and sell for 10 cents each. La Gaceta is the official journal, published at the national printing office, and contains the acts of Congress, reports of the various ministers, and municipal announcements. The two dailies are made up of long-winded editorials on all manner of topics, ancient and modern, with a modicum of telegraphic news and local gossip, commercial advertisements and shipping intelligence from the ports of Limon and Punta Arenas. Speaking of the joys of journalism in this part of the world, we may refer to the fate of Senor Don Marchel, editor of Las Brujas, the leading newspaper of San Jose during the presidency of Bernardo Soto. One day Don Marchel published an article which so offended the ruler of the so-called Republic that he sent for the editor to come at once to the palace. Not daring to disobey, the offender hastened to the executive mansion, where he was ushered into Soto's private apartment. At sight of Marchel, the President leaped to his feet in ungovernable fury, seized a loaded pistol that happened to lie near and shot full into the face of the surprised and unarmed man, missing him by the merest chance. Naturally, at this alarming juncture Senor Marchel stood not upon the order of going, but took to his heels with expedition. Half an hour later, while in his own house making hasty preparations to leave the country, he was arrested by officers of the Government and taken to prison; where, that very night, by the President's order, 100 lashes were well laid on his bare back. As Soto was aware, this was the worst punishment that could possibly be devised; because, aside from physical pain, any haughty scion of Old Castile would rather die a hundred deaths than suffer such humiliation. Nor was this all.

Next morning, weak and bleeding as he was, Marchel, handcuffed like a galley-slave, was marched off with several other political offenders and a few common criminals to Punta Arenas, where he was forced to board an outward-bound steamer, and forbidden to return. Without trial by law, or opportunity to defend himself, he was sentenced to perpetual exile, his property confiscated and his family left to the charity of friends. Perhaps the most popular "institution" of San Jose is the International Club, which numbers among its members every gentleman in the city. It occupies a spacious, one-story, white-painted building and contains reception, reading, billiard, card and bar-rooms. In the court is a fountain, surrounded by beautiful flowers. The reading room is rich in periodicals—Spanish, English, German and French; the library, of 5,000 volumes, is in all languages, German classics and English works of travel predominating. Another club, "El Comercio," stands next in importance, with upwards of 200 members. The San Jose Philharmonic Society has also many members, including several professors and all the musical talent of the city. There are also several scientific societies of law and medicine; and a literary association known as "El Porvenir."

The traveler in Costa Rica should not omit a visit to that unique institution, the National Liqueur Factory. It stands on a hill at the eastern border of the city, near the railway station, and is usually mistaken by strangers for a feudal castle. The high-walled, fortress-like enclosure, covering about three acres, contains engine-house, stills, and warehouses, as well as the residences of the superintendent and engineers. The grounds are entered through a high arched gateway of carved stone, whose pediment contains a clock. To the left are some offices, whence custodians issue to escort all visitors about the premises. The head engineer in this factory is a North American, formerly of St. Louis; and there are two German engineers and 25 or 30 native assistants. The four large stills were manufactured in Glasgow, on what is known as the "coffee principle." Each of the fermentation houses holds four rows of big tanks, each tank with a capacity of 12,500 bottles. The storage warehouses show long rows of tanks, made of teak-wood from India, each tank holding 23,000 quarts. I counted 80 of them, the total capacity being 1,840,000 quarts! The present out-put of this institution is about a million and a half, annually;—yet none of it is exported, and you rarely see drunkenness in Costa Rica. Nor is this all, for large quantities of wine and beer are imported, besides a good deal of illicit distilling of aguardiente, or rum made from sugar-cane. The Government claims the monopoly of its manufacture, however, and compounds it with various sweet liquors. Guarapo is the fermented juice of cane; aguardiente the distilled spirit. The latter contains 22 per cent. of alcohol and sells at wholesale for 75 cents the bottle. Of course it is much milder than our whiskies. The Costa Ricans are very fond of it—and I have observed that foreigners are not always insensible to its charms.

High up in the hills back of the liquor factory are the city reservoirs. Water is brought to San Jose in an open aqueduct from a river eight miles distant. It is yellow and turbid, but when filtered becomes beautifully clear, and is regarded as wholesome. The five reservoirs are small, built of cut stone, the walls 10 feet high, four feet thick and curiously buttressed at intervals like a mediaeval castle. The supply of water being much greater than is needed for private use, the surplus is devoted to running the machinery of several factories. Mains convey the water throughout the city to the houses and a hundred fountains. All the filters and appurtenances of latest make were brought from the United States. It may be mentioned, en passant, that the water-tax in San Jose is sixteen dollars a year! There are few hydrants in use in case of fire—but the fire department is limited to one hand engine.

The Waldo County W. C. T. U.

The Resolutions Adopted and Officers Elected.
TORONTO, ONT., Oct. 27. The third and last day's session of the World's W. C. T. U. convention opened with the interest unabated. Miss Slack presided. At the request of the majority of the delegates the complete list of authorized delegates was read, comprising, after several additions, a total of 200 and more.

Of the names added, that of Miss Cornelia Dow, daughter of the late Gen. Neal Dow, was received with enthusiasm, and given precedence of all the names presented. After the reading of the report of Mrs. J. K. Barney on "Penal, charitable and reformatory work," a series of devotional songs was instituted, conducted by Miss Greenwood of Brooklyn, who gave an exposition of Bible study of a unique and practical nature. Miss Mary E. Green of Honolulu was then introduced, and related her experiences among the Hawaiian Islanders.

Miss Green was followed by Commander Evangeline Booth, one of the daughters of Gen. Booth, who brought the devotional hour to a close. The Executive Committee then reported the following-named newly elected officers: Honorary President, Mrs. M. C. Leavitt, Boston; President, Miss Frances E. Willard, Evanston, Ill.; Vice President at Large, Lady Henry Somerset, England; Secretary, Miss Agnes E. Slack, England; Assistant Secretary, Miss Anna Gordon, Evanston, Ill.; Treasurer, Mrs. Mary M. Sanderson, Danville, Quebec.

The afternoon's session proved the most crowded of any of the whole convention. The meeting was opened with prayer, and the minutes of the whole convention were read by Miss Slack. Mrs. Matilda B. Carse read a report on the department of World's Archives, and a paper on the Press by Miss Reed was read, showing that about 6,588, or one-third of the newspapers, published W. C. T. U. matter, 3,500 giving space for a W. C. T. U. column.

Mrs. Kirk, Secretary of Australia's W. C. T. U., read the report of the Committee on Resolutions.

Among them was the following on the subject of social purity: Whereas, the regulation of vice has become an aggressive question in the W. C. T. U. and the discussion of it is represented by the contagious diseases act has assumed a character which we cannot ignore; Resolved, that while we do not forget that even the most conscientious and honest differ in relation to vital matters, and while we would abstain from anything that would savor of criticism or judgment of motives, yet we, the world's W. C. T. U., must earnestly protest against anything that would even seem to commit our great organization to any effort at regulation or license as applied to all and of forms of sin, and we must unflinchingly declare our horror of any compromise whatever with anything which is wrong in principle or sinful in practice. We utter this, our conviction and protest, and we declare that we never to surrender the principles for which we have always stood as a body, and this we do in the name of God and home and every land.

Resolutions were also adopted congratulating Her Majesty Queen Victoria, on her resplendent reign, regretting the persistence of the United States Senate in refusing to ratify the Anglo-American arbitration treaty; declaring for church cooperation against lynching, and for equal suffrage.

With reference to labor questions the committee favored the eight-hour law for wage-workers and opposition was expressed to strikes. Evangelistic training schools were commended, and recognition and help requested, and confidence was expressed in the official organ of the Union. Armenia was referred to and the massacres were deeply deplored. Lynching and drink on ship's railways and gambling were topics of other resolutions, the whole presenting the feeling of the association as reported by the committee in the live matters of the day.

Dr. Mary Wood Allen, Superintendent of the Social Purity Department, offered a resolution that, after regretting the absence of Mrs. E. L. Butler, expressing appreciation and sympathy in her unrelenting crusade against social vice, requested that she be still the association's leader in purity work. With this addition the report was submitted to the meeting and unanimously carried.

The credentials, executed handsomely and framed for the occasion, of the Icelandic delegate, Miss Johannsdottir, were presented to Mrs. Carse as keeper of the archives in Chicago. Miss Johannsdottir, who is President of the W. C. T. U. of Iceland, and niece of the Premier of Iceland, came forward and made a very pleasing speech in broken English which was received with much applause.

A discussion on the subject, "How we may advance the white ribbon cause in all countries," followed. It was led by Mrs. Louise Rounds, President of the Illinois W. C. T. U., who spoke very forcibly and practically. Miss Pielops of Canada followed, giving a short resume of the system in vogue in Canada. Mrs. Beauchamp, Assistant Secretary of the United States W. C. T. U., made a stirring address which aroused the greatest enthusiasm as to the best methods of the work.

Miss Kirk of Australia gave particulars of her country in this connection, showing that the work was in a very systematic condition. One of the features of the special mention was the enlistment of the wage-workers, supporting girls in the work which was found to bring good results, and was specially commended by Miss Willard. Mrs. Todd, ex-President of the Dominion W. C. T. U., broached a plan of doing more thorough and better work by sending Miss Frances E. Willard, with her right hand worker, Miss Gordon, round the world to propagate and strengthen work in other countries. Other speakers, Mrs. Helen Bullock, U. S. A., Mrs. Walling, U. S. A., and Dr. Amelia Yeomans, Vice President Dominion W. C. T. U., and the session was closed by benediction.

Letter from South Dakota.

[Correspondence of The Journal.]

HOSMER, EDMUNDS CO., SOUTH DAKOTA, Oct. 20, 1897. Although Dakota has had rain enough the past season to produce half a dozen crops the crop is no more than an average for this country. A few men got 15 or 20 bushels of wheat per acre, but it was due to luck and not good sense and the majority got no more than 8 bushels. Since the country has been infested with cactus we have considered spring plowing best, as it destroys all weeds. But the past spring it did not rain from the time snow melted until June, consequently grain sown on spring plowing dried out and did not sprout until the June rains, while that drilled in stubble came up at once and made a fair crop. We had some quite hot days, but not enough to injure crops. Most of the late grain was harvested green, as it did not seem to ripen on account of so much wet weather. Competition has placed the price of threshing so low that machines have not been able to make expenses for the past few years, and so many have gone to other localities that some grain must be left unthreshed if we have an early winter. They have threshed as low as 5 cents per bushel out of the stack, but this year charge 7 cents.

The deserted homes of Dickey county present a striking contrast to the more thickly settled portions of McPherson county, South Dakota. Dickey Co., North Dakota, was settled by speculators, while a large part of McPherson county was settled by Russians, who came here to make themselves homes. They get no better crops than the people of Dickey county, but they build their own houses from sod or mud. The mud is either made into brick and dried, or placed at once in a wall, about 2 feet thick and 2 feet high, and when thoroughly dried another 2 feet is added. The mud is preferable, as mice do not trouble it, while a sod house is infested with mice. They whitewash the walls inside and paint the doors and window frames and thus make their homes quite attractive. The contents of the barnyard is mixed with straw and water and made into bricks which are piled up and plastered over for the winter's fuel. They also have large furnaces for straw. Thus the hardy industrious pioneer settler has found a free soil and produced nearly everything he needs at home. His only expenses are for tea, coffee and sugar. Stock is largely depended upon instead of grain. As the settler acquires wealth, the sod and mud house is abandoned, and some of the finest farm houses I ever saw are to be found in these Russian settlements. They are eager for knowledge, but their progress has been greatly retarded by the employment of teachers who knew nothing of German. Pupils often learn to read a book through without knowing the meaning of the words. But wherever the Russians are in the majority they are careful to elect officers who will look after their interests.

Eureka is the terminus of a railroad and is a lively town, with 23 grain buyers and 15 saloons, and with lumber yards, banks, and everything that goes to make up a western town. Hillsview has two elevators, a store and post office, and Hosmer, just across the line in Edmunds county, has about the same. Lutheran churches are scattered over the country. Without regard to nationality the people are agreed that it is not safe to hire both capital and labor for the purpose of producing grain. But it is safe to hire either capital or labor for the purpose of producing stock.

The county passed through from Ellendale to Leola is very similar to Dickey county—a slightly undulating prairie—but after getting a few miles west of Leola, we come to the Coteau hills. For some miles after entering the hills we see nothing except an occasional bunch of cattle. After the more precipitous and stony hills are passed settlers are found, and the valleys are large and fertile. Just north of Leola we crossed the path of a prairie fire which was driven eastward by a fierce wind the Saturday before. It devastated hundred of square miles and destroyed something for every settler in its path, some escaping with only their clothing. The clothing of two men caught fire and it is said they will be crippled for life, if they recover. I am located for the winter where I can see the train pass every day, and as I go home at night I can see both the towns of Hosmer and Hillsview.

Speaker Reed on Critics.

What a fine aerial creature is the man who shingles into the fog! Him no attraction of gravitation pulls to earth and if it did he would only fall off noses. Nevertheless it may be that those who confine themselves to actual roofs shelter more human beings from the heat of the sun, the fall of the snow and the drippings of the clouds, than those who do nothing and say much. While, however, we may properly protest against wholesale belief in the harvesting powers of those who return bringing no sheaves with them, it would be unwise not to admit their very great usefulness. A horse kicking across the team, to put the question in its worst form, may not pull a pound, but he may excite the other horses to pull the team out of the slough, even if they refuse to do it any way but their own. To put it, however, more fairly, while ideals are seldom reached, idols are a part of the forces of the world and work as all the others forces do to make the world better and more inhabitable. In other words, discontent and complaint do really fill a great part in the history of progress, and even the vaguest unrest has its uses. (Hon. Thomas B. Reed in The Illustrated American.)

Just a Little Pain.

The first touch of Rheumatism is a fair warning of much torture to follow. The little pains which dart through the body are not so severe at first, possibly a mere pang, and cause little inconvenience, but if the warning is unheeded, they will multiply rapidly and increase in severity until they become almost unbearable. Rheumatism as a rule is much severer in winter, though many are so afflicted with it that they are crippled all the year round. Those who felt its first touch last year, may be sure that with the first season of cold or disagreeable weather, the mild pain of last year will return as a severe one, and become more and more intense until the disease has then completely in its grasp. Being a disease of the blood of the most obstinate type, Rheumatism can be cured only by a real blood remedy. No liniments or ointments can possibly reach the disease. Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) is the only cure for Rheumatism, because it is the only blood remedy that goes down to the very bottom of all obstinate blood troubles, and cures cases which other remedies cannot reach.

Capt. O. E. Hughes, the popular railroad man of Columbia, S. C., says: "At first I paid very little attention to the little pains, but they became so much sharper and more frequent that before long I was almost disabled. The disease attacked my muscles, which would swell to many times their natural size, and give me the most intense pain. 'I was ready to doubt that Rheumatism could be cured, when I was advised to try S. S. S. This remedy seemed to get right at the cause of the disease, and soon cured me completely. I believe that S. S. S. is the only cure for Rheumatism, because it is absolutely free from opium, mercury or other minerals. It is the only blood remedy guaranteed Purely Vegetable and never fails to cure Rheumatism, Catarrh, Scrofula, Contagious Blood Poison, Cancer, Eczema, or any other blood disease, no matter how obstinate. Books mailed free. Address The Swift Specific Company, Atlanta, Georgia."

Another sportsman has been shot—mistaken for a deer—and foot ball casualties are coming in thick and fast. But there has not been a fatal bicycle accident for at least a week.

It is reported that a Bucksport party on a recent trip down the bay "shot 24 ducks and five bushels of clams." We are under the impression that there is a law against shooting clams. If not, there ought to be.

It is a boy—Mrs. Oct. 28th—and has been overwhelmed with congratulations. Queen Victoria cabled as follows: "Congratulations on this day of your happiness, and may your heir bring you joy. Victoria."

The Calais Times is very sour on the new fish commissioner, Hon. L. T. Carleton, and says "he is now measured up as an incompetent, tactless blowhead." We do not recognize the description this way. Commissioner Carleton must have unintentionally stepped on the Times man's pet corn.

The Grangers of Waldo county will read with interest and, we trust, with profit, the letter from A. Patton in another column. The Grange is a farmers' organization, and it should be composed of farmers and controlled by farmers. Perhaps if more care had been exercised in admissions to membership there would be less reason to complain of the control passing to alien hands.

With regard to the Battle Hymn sung at the Maine Musical Festival, of which mention has been made in these columns, we are informed that the sheet music (Olive Tison Co.) bears the credit of "Translation by E. L. C." (Mr. Chapman's wife). The music was composed by Mr. Chapman. The compiler of the Souvenir Program seems to have been the one at fault.

Henry George, the candidate of the Jeffersonian Democracy for Mayor of Greater New York, died of apoplexy Oct. 29th. His death is attributed to overwork, and has called forth universal tributes to his sincerity of purpose and his worth as a man. The funeral took place Sunday, and tens of thousands viewed the body as it lay in state. The obsequies were most impressive. Henry George, Jr., was promptly nominated to fill his father's place, and with scarcely an interruption the campaign went on.

We reprint from the Portland Sunday Times—with the accompanying portrait, for which we are indebted to the courtesy of that journal—an interesting account of the California experiences of a well known citizen of Waldo county, Hon. Crosby Fowler of Unity. The account of Mr. Fowler's second trip to California, overland, is especially interesting to the writer, who made the same trip, in part, a few years later, when buffalo and Indians were still plentiful, although the latter were, temporarily, peaceful.

If there is one thing above another which is contemptible, it is a seafaring community, especially in the case of rumors of disasters, which have no foundation, and which only result in causing needless anxiety to those having friends upon the vessels concerning which the rumors are set afloat. [Cape Ann Advertiser.]

The city of Gloucester is fortunate if the unfounded rumors circulated there relate only to disasters at sea. In other communities they have a wider range, taking life or reputation, and affecting all the relations of life. If the newspapers should, without investigation, publish a title of the unfounded rumors set afloat in a single week there would be a social revolution.

The death of Col. John M. Adams, editor of the Portland Argus, takes from Maine journalism a sturdy and prominent figure. No man in all the State was better known to his co-workers, and none was held in higher regard and esteem. He was a manly man, a kindly man, and an able man, and his friends and admirers were not confined to the party he served so conscientiously and so disinterestedly. A charter member of the Maine Press Association he rarely failed to be present at its sessions and his excursions, ever manifested an active interest in its affairs, and opened the doors of his hospitable home in Deering to its members on many never to be forgotten occasions. Mrs. Adams and the other members of the household shared the esteem in which the husband and father was held, and the hearts of many go out to them in tenderest sympathy in their deep affliction.

The municipal contest in New York has been the most exciting. The stakes were large. The success of Tammany meant the distribution of enormous patronage and the absorption by the leaders of millions of the public money. Democrats and Republicans have alike been divided. The press of New York city, almost without exception, cut loose from party allegiance. The Democratic New York Sun declared itself unequivocally for the Republican candidate. The New York Herald, after sitting awhile on the fence, advocated the election of Low, the citizens' candidate. Mr. Low has also had the support of that ever staunch Republican paper, the New York Tribune. Clearly the worst fate that could befall Greater New York was the triumph of Tammany, an organization everywhere recognized as corrupt and unscrupulous, an enemy alike of good government and good morals. There seemed but one way to defeat Tammany, and that was for all good citizens to rally to the support of Low. No one believed it possible to elect a straight Republican ticket, and when Gen. Tracy was nominated it was generally recognized that the success of Tammany was assured.

Editorial Notes.

The calamity shriekers are seeking cover again. Wheat has made another advance.

The Mexicans missed the greatest opportunity of their lives when William Jennings didn't visit them.

The waves of Republican prosperity continue to wash away the planks from the silvercratic Chicago platform.

Those living in vicinity of large manufacturing concerns are not "kicking," against the effect of the Dingley law.

The proportion of those who fail to see the returning prosperity is estimated now at something less than one-fourth of one per cent.

With only $153,000,000 of silver coined by the United States mints last year the silverites cannot make out a strong case about "discrimination" against silver.

Wheat has gone up again, but the calamityites have some consolation left in the fact that the New England mackerel catch is 60,000 barrels short of that of a year ago.

Wheat, Silver, and Bryan! Last year they all stood together, but they have since parted company, though Bryan has been trying to keep pace with silver in its downward course.

Parties who shouted for instant action by the administration on the Cuban question now admit that the course of the President was that of wisdom and diplomacy in dealing with this delicate question.

The export trade of September was the heaviest of any month in the year, and was greater than in any September for years. It amounted to $104,691,705, a gain of over 22 per cent. over that of the September of a year ago.

It is understood that McLean paid Bryan for his silver speeches in Ohio in gold coin of "standard weight and fineness." This was against McLean's principles, who pays in silver and demands gold, but Bryan was firm and he had the upper hand.

It must have caused Mr. Bryan a stitch in his side when he went through Ohio and noticed on all sides signs of prosperity where last year he found the conditions reversed, and where he predicted that without free coinage of silver no improvement was possible.

But little credit will redound to the Democratic editors who are attempting to decry President McKinley's action in the appointment of a special reciprocity commissioner. In view of the Democratic record on reciprocity, their best policy would seem to be to turn to other fields.

Bradstreet's statement of business conditions shows a continued healthy gain throughout the country. The bank clearings of last week were nearly 25 per cent. greater than those of a year ago. The business failures were also nearly a third less and the North American exports of wheat were 25 per cent. more than a year ago.

Mr. Bryan "explains" very satisfactorily, to himself, why silver has fallen a fifth of its value since he was roaming the country last year, while at the same time wheat has advanced 50 per cent. in value, but now and then he runs up against a farmer who can't see through his logic. It is remarkable how some farmers can't be convinced.

According to the Popocratic arguments of last year a vote for McKinley meant to the farmer wheat at twenty-five cents a bushel, but one for Bryan meant a dollar a bushel for wheat and then every dollar was to be worth two dollars, so that the farmers were to be eight times as well off with Bryan as with McKinley for President. All right as a theory.

The official figures show that the gold reserve increased last week, reaching a total of more than $150,000,000. The reserve is getting so unwieldy as to cause the Treasury officials considerable annoyance. This is a novel sensation for the Treasury employees whose experience in that Department dates from the incoming of Clevelandism.

It was thought that the mails and wires would be kept hot and humming with reports as to why Japan ought not to have adopted the gold standard, as a result of the trip of a certain trio of American silver statesmen who took a vacation in Japan at the expense of the silver trust, but the American people have again been doomed to disappointment and not a word has been heard from these patriots.

After meals you should have simply a feeling of comfort and satisfaction. You should not feel any special indications that digestion is going on. If you do, you have indigestion, which means no digestion. This may be the beginning of so many dangerous diseases, that it is best to take it in hand at once and treat it with Shaker Digestive Cordial. For you know that indigestion makes poison, which causes pain and sickness. And that Shaker Digestive Cordial helps digestion and cures indigestion. Shaker Digestive Cordial does this by providing the digestive materials in which the sick stomach is wanting. It also tones up and strengthens the digestive organs, and makes them perfectly healthy. This is the rationale of its method of cure, as the doctors would say. Sold by druggists, price 10 cents to $1.00 per bottle.

Obituary.

Thomas C. Porter died at his home, 44 Wintthrop street, South Framingham, at an early hour Tuesday morning, Oct. 28th, aged 75 years. For some time he had suffered more or less from sickness, but had been at business nearly every day up to a week before his death, the immediate cause of which was a complication of diseases which developed into pneumonia. Funeral services were held Thursday from the Unitarian church, Framingham, Rev. E. C. Smith officiating, and interment was in Edgell Grove cemetery.

Deceased was one of the long-time business men of Boston and had been at the head of the firm of T. C. Porter & Co. since 1840. Their business was brokers and commission merchants in dye stuffs and chemicals at 165 Milk street, Boston. He was a native of Belfast, Maine, and came to Boston in early life and his characteristics of honesty, industry and perseverance had won him a place among the most esteemed business men of the city.

Mr. Porter came to Framingham about twenty years ago and soon after purchased property on Wintthrop street where he has since resided. He has always been an active and public spirited citizen. At the organization of the Framingham Hospital he was elected its president and has occupied that position ever since, working through each year with earnestness and well directed effort, and to him is due the credit for its success.

For many years he had been an active worker in the First Parish Unitarian church and had long occupied an important position in its corporate officials.

In the fraternal Old Fellowship he was one of the oldest members in the State in years of membership and had been accorded the highest office in the State organization of the Lodge as well as Grand Patriarch of the Encampment. He was a member of Siloam Lodge and Buckingham Encampment, both of Boston, and of Rebekah Lodge of this town. The local organizations all attended the funeral services and the burial rites were performed at the grave. Representatives from the Boston organizations and from the State Grand Lodge were in attendance.

His first wife died many years ago, but he married soon after coming to Framingham Miss Lucy Homer, who now survives. Of the deceased it can most truly be said that he had a broad and comprehensive mind, a kind heart, generous public spirit, genial disposition, and many other virtues that go to make up an exemplary citizen.

It was a representative and a large gathering of people that assembled in the Unitarian church yesterday afternoon to honor the memory of the deceased. The services were conducted by Rev. E. C. Smith, the pastor, and Rev. Charles A. Humphreys of Randolph, who for 18 years was Mr. Porter's clergyman. The Apollon quartette of Boston sang three times.

The space about the casket and around the altar was literally filled with one of the most displays of floral pieces seen in Framingham for a long time. These embraced contributions from the various Old Fellows' lodges, Sons and Daughters of Maine, Nurses from the Training School and other organizations, as well as private remembrances.

There were seated in the body of the church, all of the officers of the Grand Lodge of Old Fellows, Judge A. O. Marden of Stoughton, Framingham Lodge, O. O. F., delegates from Siloam Lodge and Buckingham Encampment of Boston, the Framingham Daughters of Rebekah, trustees of the Framingham Hospital, Nurses from the Training School, and members of Old Fellows bodies with which Mr. Porter had been connected.

Messrs. Enos H. Tucker, William E. Ford and William Marble were present as past masters of the Grand Lodge.

The quartette rendered "Lead Kindly Light," "Passing out of the Shadow," and "We'll Meet Again." "We'll Meet Again" was sung at the grave in Edgell Grove cemetery of the late were performed by Siloam Lodge, No. 2 of Boston. [The Framingham, Mass., Gazette.]

Thomas C. Porter was the son of Zachariah and Rachel Porter of this city. His father was one of the early settlers of Belfast, and entered upon the practice of law here in 1813 in partnership with the Hon. John Wilson, the grandfather of Mr. J. F. Wilson of this city. Mr. Porter died Nov. 9, 1824, at the age of 44 years. Rachel, his wife, died Jan. 16, 1861, aged 73 years. Of their children but one survives, Mrs. Abby C. Pillsbury of this city. Thomas C. Porter began his business career in the drug store of W. O. Poor, Belfast, and before attaining his majority went to Boston, where he continued in the same line. He made rapid advancement and before many years was a member of one of the large wholesale drug houses of Boston. The firm underwent some changes of name and members, but always included Mr. Porter. At one time it was Cushing, Porter & Cates, and another Porter, Loring & Co. For many years past Mr. Porter had done business under the firm name of Thomas C. Porter & Co., making a specialty of dye stuffs and chemicals.

By his first wife he had two children, a son and daughter, who attained manhood and womanhood and married. The son, T. Curtis Porter, was associated with his father in business. Both children died several years ago, the daughter, Mrs. Van Praag, leaving several children. For years Mr. Porter and his family came every summer to his old home on Primrose Hill, the house now occupied by Dr. G. C. Kilgore, which was built by his father. Of late his visits have been infrequent and brief, and he was known only to our older citizens, by whom he was held in high esteem.

Wellington Shorey of Waldo passed away Wednesday morning, Oct. 27th, after an illness of nine days. His health had been poor for two or three years and he had been gradually failing. In his last illness he was not considered to be in any danger until Sunday morning. From that time until the last few hours he was a great sufferer. He was delirious the last two days, not recognizing any of his family but once in that time. All that love and kindness could do for him was done. Husband and father is now at rest.

Mr. Shorey was born in Albion, June 11, 1824, and was the son of Daniel and Betsy Shorey. Of a large family of children, but three brothers and one sister are now living. Mr. Shorey left home when 14 years old and lived with an uncle in Albion a few years. He then went to Waldo and worked several years for the late Horace Littlefield. In 1848 he bought the farm that he lived on when he passed away, and had lived there all the time except one year when he rented his farm, moved to the Head of the Tide, and ran the saw-mill. At the end of the year he returned to his farm. In 1849 he married Louisa Durham, daughter of John and Drusilla Durham of Waldo. Eight children were born to them—six sons and two daughters—and all attained manhood and womanhood but one son, who passed away in infancy thirty years ago. Four of the sons lived in Montana several years: J. D. Shorey, carpenter, White Sulphur Springs, J. W. and G. B. Shorey, ranchmen, Lake Basin, and R. O. Shorey, the youngest son, runs a ranch of Roberts. The remaining three live in the east and were with him through his illness and present at the funeral. They are Mrs. J. H. McGraw of Knox, C. W. Shorey, who lives on the old homestead, and Miss Carrie E., living with her mother in the old home. His home was ever open to all. A great worker, he was always ready to assist those who were ill or needy. He was a charter member of Frederick Ritchie Grange and was buried under its order. Mr. Shorey was a man highly esteemed by all who knew him and was very decided in what he believed to be just and right. In belief he was a Spiritualist and an ardent and zealous worker in the cause. He was always at his home on the Camp Ground at Temple Heights when the meetings were in session. Beautiful floral tributes were furnished by Mrs. J. F. Noyes and Mrs. Georgie Rolerson Dickey of Belfast, Mrs. Clarence Smith, Waldo, Mrs. J. H. Cony, Augusta. The funeral services were held at his residence Friday, Oct. 29, at 12 o'clock, Mrs. M. J. Wentworth officiating. The bereaved family have the sympathy of a large circle of friends as the many present on the occasion will testify. The following lines were read at the services by Mrs. Wentworth:

So thick the graves within the churchyard grow,
Oh lonely heart,
So oft the bitter tears our eyes o'erflowing
When they depart.

We kiss the pallid lips that do not answer
Our sad good-bye,
The country breeze, alas, we may not follow
With mortal eye.

Heartick we turn us from the mocking
The silence gloom,
Back to our pathway, lonely, and so suddenly
Bereft of bloom.

Oh what shall heal the heart so torn and bleeding?
But this sweet thought—
The mortal eye or ear sense not their presence

Our friends die not.

We may not heed the forms that walk beside us,
Nor their sweet song,
Our blinded eyes the curtains that divide us
But not for long—

Not long the journey hence, the hill uprising
He knoweth best;
He knows how soon the heart and feet
Must needs find rest.

MYRA WESTWORTH EMERSON.

The funeral of our late Representative Wm. L. Littlefield, was held at his home, No. 12 Church street, Thursday, Oct. 28th. Rev. J. M. Leighton conducted the services, which were largely attended by our towns people. The officiating clergyman was a neighbor, and a personal friend, of the deceased, and spoke feelingly of his many good qualities, his staunch friendships, his devotion to his family, and his love for his home. The floral tributes were many and beautiful, and included the following: From his wife and daughter, a wreath; Messrs. E. C. Hilton and W. P. Thompson and families, a pall; Timothy Chase Lodge, a pillow; Palestine Commandery, Knights Temple, a cross and crown; The Loon Club, a large broken column; Bradford Thomas & Co., cut flowers; his associates at Bradford Thomas & Co.'s, a cross; O. W. Hewett & Co. and employees, a barge; Portland friends—A. D. Sullivan, Dr. B. B. Foster and D. W. Heseltine—cut flowers; Mr. Albert K. Day and Mr. F. H. Parkhurst, Mr. pillow; Hon. Henry B. Cleaves, a wreath; Geo. P. Field, chrysanthemums; Mrs. R. P. Chase and Mrs. C. W. Walden, English violets; Mrs. C. H. Field, cut flowers; Miss Turner, cut flowers; Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Burdett, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Burns, Mrs. W. B. Swan, pinks. Dr. G. P. Lombard, Messrs. R. P. Chase, C. W. Walden and J. H. Howes acted as bearers. Among the friends from out of town who came to attend the funeral were: Hon. H. L. Shepherd, Rockport; Hon. A. R. Day, President of the Maine Senate, Corinna, Hon. Albert Pierce, Frankfort, Messrs. F. T. Clapp, D. N. Hardacker, J. D. Nichols, A. F. Waldron, H. F. Hildreth, C. F. McIntosh and A. H. Jones, Rockland, N. B. Cobb and A. John Pillsbury, Boston, G. W. Achorn, Camden, A. E. Chase, Brooks, and A. W. Smith, Richmond.

The funeral of A. J. Harriman took place at his late home, 13 Congress street, at 10.30 a. m., Oct. 29th, Rev. C. H. Wells of the Universalist church officiating. The attendance was very large, showing the wide acquaintance of the deceased and the esteem in which he was held in the community where he had so long been a familiar figure. The floor under the casket was carpeted with cut flowers and upon the casket were handsome floral tributes from the family, friends and neighbors. The bearers were Benj. Kelley, J. F. Wilson, J. W. Knowlton and S. G. Norton.

Robert C. Duffy, one of Camden's old and respected citizens died at his home on the Cobb Road Oct. 22d. Mr. Duffy had been in feeble health for some time and on Friday laid down to take his accustomed nap before dinner and went to sleep to wake in another world. He died as he had lived peacefully, leaving a loving wife and three sons, Everett, N., Charles F. and Ralph F. Duffy, also one daughter, Mrs. Orris Bowers. Deceased was a member of Amity Lodge, F. & A. M., and was buried by the Waldo Masonic lodge. Mr. Duffy was born and always lived in Camden and was 69 years and 22 days old. He was for a good many years the manager of D. H. Bissell's Powder Mills and during that time there was not one accident, which was quite remarkable. The funeral was held from his late home Oct. 24th, at 2 o'clock. [Camden Herald.]

A telegram received in Bangor on Friday conveyed the news of the death of Capt. Arthur Armstrong of Hampden, master of the three-masted schooner Marion Hill of Bangor. The schooner was wrecked early in October near Azua, south side of San Domingo, and Capt. Armstrong died at the port on the 13th. The crew arrived in New York on Friday. Capt. Armstrong was well known in shipping circles, from Bangor all along the coast. His brother is master of the schooner Norumbega, which arrived from Bangor on Friday, just before arrival of the sad news from San Domingo.

NORTHPORT NEWS.

The Brown's Corner schoolhouse was painted last week.

Warren E. Pitcher went to Boston Oct. 30th for employment.

Rev. G. E. Tufts again filled the pulpit at the Baptist church last Sunday.

Mrs. Osgood Woodbury returned home Oct. 29th from a visit in Boston.

Mrs. Grace C. Fuller of East Boston is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Mitchell.

Mrs. Flora Brohan went to Boston last Saturday for an extended visit to friends in that city and vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs. Forest Currier of Camden spent a part of Saturday and Sunday as the guests of Mrs. Rose Patterson.

Miss Helen Cummings of Cambridge, Mass., and Miss Minnie Dodge of Portland are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Otis Cummings.

Mr. W. E. Patterson will go to Boston on Saturday's boat to accept a situation that has been tendered him by a large dye concern of that city.

Sch. Helen, Capt. Alonzo Batchelder, came into the Cove last Wednesday from Bangor, loaded with lumber for New York. She sailed Friday.

The auction sale of the farming tools and implements of the late S. S. Lane last Saturday was a great success. Bids were lively and everything sold brought a fairly good price.

Miss Pauline Rhodes, who has been confined to her room by a severe sore throat, is slowly recovering, which is a great relief to her parents, who were fearful that it was to be a malignant case of diphtheria.

Oscar Hills is building a road across H. H. Andrews' land, parallel with the south line and far enough therefrom to leave a good row of cottage lots, and also a similar row on the opposite side. The street extends west from George street just south of "the hollow." Mr. Andrews is building it at his own expense to sell his lots.

Henry Dunbar of Belfast is making noticeable improvements at his farm near Brown's Corner. He recently built a barn 30x40 feet, with 16-foot posts and 12-foot basement. The barn floor is 12 feet wide, with a 14-foot mow on each side. He has cleared one field of 5 acres, which is laid down to grass; is clearing another of 2 1/2 acres, and will soon begin on another of 2 acres.

The reservoir of the Northport Water Co. will not only be a source of great benefit to the Methodist campground, for which it is intended, but to the inhabitants of that section of East Northport known as Brown's Corner. Every house there could be easily supplied with water from the reservoir, as it has an elevation of something like 180 feet above high water of the bay, which would produce all the pressure required. Perhaps some time the company may conclude to lay a main pipe for the convenience of those who desire to tap it for domestic use. No doubt it would prove a very profitable venture for the company, and a great convenience.

Our neighbor, Mrs. B., hearing a great rumour among the hens rushed across the road to investigate, and was greatly surprised to find a magnificent black fox having a tussle with a very large rooster. She clapped her hands, danced a jig, and the fox fled, the rooster crowed, and all of the hens cackled with delight to see the enemy of their race cheated of his prey. But alas! the day of reckoning came too soon for the poor rooster; for next morning Reynard again appeared in all his glory, got his eye on the slick looking Bramah that crowed at him the day before, and in less time than it takes to tell it the rooster was winking a last farewell to his companions, as the fox bounded over the stone wall into the woods.

The reservoir to supply the Camp Ground with water is rapidly nearing completion. The first examination of the earth decided the surveyors somewhat, streaks of sand being met with in what was supposed to be solid clay. This made it necessary to do much more excavating than was expected.

A trench 6 feet wide was dug around the outside of the pit until a solid bed of clay was reached, which took it about 2 feet below the bottom of the reservoir. This pit was filled with "puddled" clay, the material being shoveled in, thoroughly wet and pounded down. This clay wall will be carried up to the height originally intended above the outside surface, making the reservoir externally as first planned, but with this additional clay wall placed between the surface to hard pan. The water, which comes from a spring, is remarkably pure, and the pipes are of sufficient capacity, with this storage reservoir holding 253,000 gallons to supply the Camp Ground for many years to come.

GOLD SEEKERS OF '49.

Story of a Party that Sailed from Bath. Adventures on Sea and Shore. Across the Plains in the Days of Indians and Buffalo. The Adventures of a Maine Boy.

HON. CROSBY FOWLER

[Portland Sunday Times.]

Of the Argonauts of 1849 one of the most enterprising and adventurous was Hon. Crosby Fowler of Unity, formerly county commissioner of Waldo county, and a well-known citizen of Eastern Maine.

Mr. Fowler was a young man of twenty years when the great California gold excitement began. In the winter and spring of 1849 stories of the wonderful discoveries in the Eldorado of the West began to be discussed by the friends of Waldo and Kennebec counties.

The young men of that day were more adventurous than those of to-day; for more of them started for California than even think of going to Klondike to-day. Yet California was at that time as much an unknown country as Alaska is to-day.

"There were as many lions in our way then," says Mr. Fowler, "as are now put before those going to the Klondike. The newspapers were as full of stories of perils and hardships then as they are now. But we found that all these terrors diminished as we approached them, and we imagine it is so with the perils of the Klondike."

It was a formidable undertaking for a country boy of 20 years to set out for California in 1849. Mr. Fowler sailed from Bath in the ship Hampton, the vessel leaving the Kennebec in the early days of September, 1849, and entering the Golden Gate in eight days less than six months. The Hampton was a ship of about 400 tons. She was commanded by Captain Davis, a huge man, six and one-half feet tall. Mr. Fowler's brother, Dutton Fowler, had been to sea several years and had risen to be mate of the Hampton.

The ship carried forty-six passengers when she left Bath, each paying $200 or $250 passage money, according as he went in the first or second cabin.

Of the passengers, Mr. Fowler remembers the names of William Bodfish, Benjamin Libby, Samuel Kendall, and a Mr. Flood of Fairfield, Robert Henry, Albert Bates and Mr. Kidder of Skowhegan; Stephen T. and Joseph Kackoff of Unity; Augustus D. Brown of Portland; Dr. Burleigh, a brother of the late Hon. C. Burleigh, and Captain Foot of Sidney, even then an old man. Most of these men are dead. Samuel Kendall of Fairfield and Albert Bates of Skowhegan are living. Dr. Burleigh became a prominent man in Idaho, and was one of the witnesses at the impeachment of President Johnson. Joseph Kackoff was drowned while crossing the Middle Fork of the Canadian River in a canoe.

The passengers on the Hampton had the regular sea fare of those days—dull, lousiness (a combination of hard bread and beef), beans, potatoes, yams, chickens and fresh pork. "There was a great deal of growling at the food," says Mr. Fowler, "but after I had knocked around the world two or three years I concluded that we lived pretty well on the Hampton."

The ship stopped at Rio Janeiro and Valparaiso; but these incidents did not diminish greatly the tediousness of the long voyage. They read, played checkers and other games, and watched the horizon intently for that most exciting of ocean incidents, the appearance of a sail. While rounding Cape Horn they were blown southward so far by a fierce gale that they reached a place where the sea scarcely set at all, and where the young men from Maine could read the fine print of their Bibles by sunlight at any hour of the night.

Mr. Fowler was very sick during the first portion of the voyage, and thinks he would have died but for the faithful nursing of Stephen Kackoff, who had practiced medicine somewhat. One of the passengers died before the ship reached Rio Janeiro.

Finally, on February day in 1850, the Hampton sailed in the Golden Gate, and the Argonauts from Maine saw the forest of masts of the vessels that had brought hundreds of other Argonauts. These vessels were lying so close together that a great storm which soon swept the harbor caused them to crash into one another with great damage.

"As I stepped ashore in San Francisco," says Mr. Fowler, "one of the first men I met was William Weeks of Clinton (now Benton). He said to me: 'Well, Fowler, I suppose that you are like all the rest who land here?'"

"How is that?" I said.

"No money," he replied.

"I was obliged to confess that I had only five cents, and as it took forty cents to get one of the letters from home that were awaiting me in the post office, I could not be said to be in the best of circumstances. Weeks took from his pocket fifty dollars in gold dust, done up in a piece of newspaper. I thanked him for it, and began to look for work. I soon found it and began helping unload a vessel at a dollar an hour. I returned the gold dust to Weeks, and did not want for a dollar after that. Weeks was, by the way, a brilliant man, and after strange vicissitudes of fortune became, I think, attorney general of California, and a presidential elector on the Lincoln ticket."

After working for a time at San Francisco, Mr. Fowler, in company with his brother Dutton, Orrin Bates and Benjamin Libby, went to the Middle Fork of the American River and began mining with the picks, shovel and cradle. They worked there fourteen months. It was hard labor, with the toiler's spirits now dampened by ill luck and now exhilarated by success. Many days they would get nothing, and sometimes there would be a day when the result of their toil would be yellow dust enough to make a thousand dollars. Generally they dug down from six to fifteen feet, until they came to a ledge. The gold was usually in the last foot of earth next the ledge. Sometimes they would be rewarded by finding nuggets of considerable size. One Sunday, when they were not at work, Mr. Fowler began idly to split into a seam of slate, that happened to attract his interest by the neatness with which it could be split into sheets. What was his surprise to find, on splitting the slate, bright, clean, yellow gold between the layers of slate. And that seam yielded several hundred dollars.

A NECKLACE OF PEARLS

Is a beautiful possession. If a woman owns one, and if a single pearl drops off the string, she makes haste to find and restore it. Good health is a more valuable possession than a necklace of the most beautiful pearls, yet one by one the jewels of health slip away, and women seem indifferent until it is almost too late, and they cannot be restored.

To die before you are really old is to suffer premature death, and that is a sin. It is a sin because it is the result of repeated violations of nature's laws.

Pain, lassitude and weariness, inability to sleep, dreadful dreams, starting violently from sleep, are all symptoms of nerve trouble.

You cannot have nerve trouble and keep your health. In ninety-nine cases out of a hundred the womb, the ovaries and the bladder are affected. They are not vital organs, hence they give out soonest.

Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, by building up the nerves and restoring woman's organism to its natural state, relieves all these troublesome uterine symptoms. In confirmation of this we, by permission, refer to the following women, all of whom speak from experience: Miss CELIA VAN HORN, 1912 Sharswood St., Philadelphia, Pa.; Miss GRACE COLCORD, 1434 Eastern Ave., Cincinnati, O.; Mrs. NEWELL, 50 Ryerson St., Brooklyn, N. Y.; Mrs. ISABEL OBERG, 220 Chestnut St., Woburn, Mass.; Mrs. A. H. COLE, New Rochelle, N. Y., and many others.

For special symptoms Mrs. Pinkham has prepared a Sanative Wash, which will cure local troubles. Give these medicines a trial.

Write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., if you are not quite satisfied; you can address private questions to a woman.

At Buffalo Licks, on the Platte River, there was a most remarkable collection of buffalo bones. There were thousands of acres of them. The plains people thought it was a place where for ages the old buffalo had come to die. But it seemed more probable that in some remarkable storm a vast herd had perished. The bones seemed to lie in groups, where the buffalo had huddled together for protection.

There were some interesting sights along the great trail. One day they met an emigrant family returning from Oregon. There were three little children, and they were packed upon a mule in the queerest way. On each side of the mule was a greenish, round object, and the child, the oldest baby, while in the other it was balanced by the two younger. The little folks were asleep, and as the mule trotted along their little heads would bob about like marbles.

On Truckee River they met the famous hero of the Plains, Kit Carson, who was driving an immense flock of sheep. He was a fine appearing man. He had, however, equal to his reputed adventures.

When they left the prairies they passed through the great pine forests of the Sierras, and finally, on September 11, 1854, the day Mr. Fowler was 25 years old, they reached the abodes of men in California.

The cows which he had bought for $8 or $10 in Missouri and Arkansas, were worth $125 in California. He had, however, lost a considerable number on the long march. The dews of the prairies had softened their hoofs, and they had been too footsore to proceed.

Having sold his cattle Mr. Fowler returned to Maine by way of Nicaragua. This was an easier route than that of the isthmus, which he had passed on his former return. By the aid of steamers on Lake Nicaragua and on the rivers the land journey was reduced to 9 or 10 miles, and this was made in coaches on a good road.

After a prosperous homeward journey Mr. Fowler returned to Unity, having had adventures enough, and content to pass the remainder of his days in peaceful Maine life.

Maine Union Veterans' Union.

Fourth Annual Encampment at Old Town, W. T.

The fourth annual encampment of the Maine Union Veterans' Union was called to order at Old Town at 10 a. m., Oct. 27th, with about 70 delegates in attendance. The places represented were: Augusta, Bucksport, Belfast, Gardiner, Brunswick, Waterville, Dover and Foxcroft, Brewer, Lewiston and Auburn, Biddeford, Saco, Lisbon, Pittsfield, New Portland, Unity, Rockland, Skowhegan and Old Town.

The Union Veterans' Union is somewhat differently constituted than the G. A. R., owing to the fact that no person is accepted as a member unless he has actually been at the front and "smelled powder." All of the members seem to be proud of the fact that they are entitled to this distinction and that none of those who went half way to the front and then turned back for some cause or other can be enrolled on the list of members of the order. The U. V. U. of Maine was organized four years ago and it has slowly gained until it is represented throughout the State by some 20 commands and has 447 members.

The officers of the past year were: Dept. Com., Gen. M. A. Murphy of Lewiston; 1st Asst. Com., J. W. P. Johnson of Gardiner; 2d Asst. Com., Geo. M. Lovington of Waterville; Adj. Gen., Gen. J. Edwin Nye of Auburn; G. M. Gen., J. M. Fernald of Lewiston; sergeant, W. S. Norcross of Lewiston; chaplain, P. R. O'Brien of Brunswick; chief mustering officer, M. C. Dilworth, Belfast; inspector general, O. B. Bridge, Old Town; executive committee, W. S. Noyes, Saco; E. Vander Gilpatrick, Waterville; Lewis Selving, Augusta; Charles O. Wadsworth, Gardiner; L. D. Carver, Rockland; Frank F. Goss, Auburn; M. A. Dorsey, Springvale.

At the morning session, Gen. J. M. Murphy, department commander, in his annual address, spoke of the need of the commander acting as recruiting officer. He said that by a little effort the order might be greatly increased in numbers. The report of Col. J. Edwin Nye, adjutant general, showed the total number of new members mustered during the past year to be 108; gained by transfer, 1; gained by reinstatement, 18; making a total gain of 127. The losses by death number 10; by transfer, 3; by suspension, 60; by honorable discharge, 7; by surrendered charter, 28, making a total loss of 108. The net gain is 14.

At noon dinner was served in the dining room at City Hall and a sumptuous repast was enjoyed. At the afternoon session these officers were elected: Department commander, William T. Eustes, Dixfield; first district deputy commander, G. M. Lovington, Waterville; second district deputy commander, S. P. Lagros, Bucksport; surgeon, W. S. Norcross, Augusta; chaplain, Rev. J. W. Webster, Newport. The officers were installed by Henry L. Lord of Saco. The evening session consisted of a campfire, with a musical program by the city band and speeches by members of the Union and citizens.

Old, Young People.

People age quickly in this American life, and instances of preservation of youthful strength and vigor in mature years are pointed out as remarkable. We are educated to believe in early decay of physical beauty and strength, especially in our young women, and permit the decline to continue with a passing sigh. Most women have a worn look in the early twenties, the figure loses its roundness, the face the glow of youth, and from that time on they age rapidly. All this is wrong and unnecessary. Let every body to whom this word may come, men and women alike, consult Dr. Greene, and learn from his great experience the cause of your trouble, and get the secure but invincible advice. Dr. Greene, discoverer of the famous Serravallo, and many other wonderful remedies, invites consultation at his office, 34 Temple Place, Boston, Mass., either by personal call or by letter through the mail, and in every case he will give you advice absolutely free of all charge. Many of our people have been short of water for the past few weeks, and welcomed the rain. Some of them, however, were disappointed by the new shingles on their roofs spoiling the water.

C. C. Hamilton calls our attention to the tablet at Constitution wharf, Boston, which says: "Here was built the frigate Constitution," proving that the Cyclopaedia quoted by us last week was correct.

Notice has been received by the agent that both steamers of the B. & B. S. Co. will continue to run four trips until further notice. The fare from Seasport is reduced to $2.35; outside rooms $1.50, and inside $1.00.

As the Browns have established their reputation of being sure to get first water at every fire, it is no more than fair they be supplied with some new hose to replace the old hose which proved unserviceable at the last two fires.

The following from the Sunday Globe will interest friends of Mr. Gray in town:

Clarendon W. Gray, the missing Boston patrolman, who disappeared a few weeks ago after a complaint for assault and battery had been sworn out against him by a man named Fautier, walked into the inspectors office at headquarters yesterday morning, ready to face the music. The chances are there will be no music for him to face, however; that is, none of an unpleasant nature. The man is clearly mentally unbalanced. The probabilities are that Gray will be returned on a pension.

OBITUARY. Mrs. Eliza A. Rich died Sunday afternoon, aged 74 years, 5 months and 7 days. Mrs. Rich was born at Isle au Haut and was the daughter of David and Elizabeth (Barter) Collins. She married Percy Rich in 1841, by whom she had two children—Daniel and Julia—both now dead. She came to Seasport in 1874 and has resided here since. Mr. Rich died several years ago. She leaves two grandsons, Louis and William, with whom she has made her home. Of her immediate family three brothers and one sister survive. Her funeral took place from her late residence Wednesday afternoon.

A DEAD DEER. Willie Rice, while out bridge hunting Friday, found in the woods north of the Brook road the body of a large buck deer that had apparently been shot three or four days. He reported to the authorities, and sent Mr. McGilvery had the deer brought to the village. Upon removing the skin it was found he had been hit by eleven buckshot along the left side. The antlers spread nearly two feet, and indicated the deer to be six years old. W. E. Grinnell took the head to taxidermist Coburn at Belfast and will have it mounted. As there is a fine for shooting deer in Waldo county, it is liable to cost some one, if detected, $40 for the offence.

There are philanthropists of the practical and bustling variety in the good town of Seasport. Some of them recently gave timely assistance to two ladies who had lost their home by fire. In less than a week these good neighbors had purchased a house, cleared the ruins, and moved it on to the site of the first one. The teamsters of the town turned out in force and an old fashioned hauling bee was the method of the moving. During the operation several animal shots were made of the long strings of horses attached. It is the presence of a community of spirit that gives character to a kind of cleared and makes it a pleasant abiding place. Wherever the sons and daughters of such a place may roam they always look back to it with affection and cherish its memory through life. (Kennebec Journal.)

FIRE. The alarm at 2:30 Sunday morning, Oct. 31st, was for fire in the Merithew house near the Cong'l church. The fire proved to be a hard one to reach as it was around the chimney and under the flooring, and required cutting away the floors and ceilings, both below and above. The firemen succeeded after a time in getting it under control with little damage, considering the position of the fire. Capt. Joseph C. Merithew, who has been very sick for several weeks, was in a room adjacent to the fire, but remained perfectly calm and received no bad effects from the excitement. James Pattee of Belfast, who had the risk on the house and furniture, was over Monday to view the damage and will have an adjuster at once. Several quite severe injuries were received by members of the fire department during the fire. I. W. Rich had a finger caught in the plunger of Engine No. 2, badly lacerating it, but the finger was saved by the skill of Dr. Flint. Wilbur Carver of the "Brownies" fell into the large reservoir near Union Hall and received some bad bruises. Capt. B. F. Colcord and C. E. Adams, who were first at the fire, had quite an experience in an attempt to go up the front stairs with buckets of water, the stairs having been removed in remodeling the house. Capt. Colcord, who was ahead in the darkness, opened the door where he thought they were and in an attempt to step up left backward, but saved the pail of water intact, although he got a severe back fall.

UNITY. Miss Helen Thomas went to Portland Oct. 27th to attend the Commercial college. Mr. S. Bennett, who drives the stage to Bangor, has moved into the house owned by Win Clark. John Stewart has returned from Montana and is boarding at Isaiah Blethen's. Dr. Thomas went to Belfast Friday. Mr. Marcellus Whitney went to Lowell, Mass., Oct. 27th, to be absent two months. Mrs. A. R. Myrick is suffering with a very sore hand. It is called a palm abscess and is very painful. The V. I. S. will give a venison supper some time this week for the benefit of the minister. Mrs. Gurney Stevens and Mrs. Mary Whitney went to Waterville last Saturday. Misses Mae Kelley and Vivian Taber spent Saturday and Sunday with their parents. Dr. J. C. Whitney of Thorndike was in town Nov. 1st. Mrs. Ellen Fowler is very low. It is thought she can live but a short time.

WALDO CENTRE. The school at Evans, Corner, taught by Miss Mabel Brown, closed last Friday. A number of friends of the pupils were present in the afternoon, when the following programme was presented in a pleasing manner: Rec., Fashion on the Brain, Matilda Clark; dec., Two Little Blackbirds, Earl Jackson; rec., Milking Time, Adria Simmons; song, On the Banks of the Old Pease, Lucy Jackson; rec., So Goes the World, Esther Evans; dialogue, The Waldo Gazette, Sidney Evans, Matilda Clark, Adria Simmons, Bernice Gilley, Adria Simmons; rec., Pat-Cake, Mildred Clark; rec., Don't, Bernice Gilley; dec., Three Little Mice, Stanley Jackson; rec., Somebody's Mother, Adria Simmons. The dialogue, The Waldo Gazette, consisted principally of the reading of a paper by that name, which was composed by the pupils.

WINTERPORT. Rev. Wm. Powlesland and wife of Orrington visited friends in town last week. Miss Lizzie Gregg Atwood of Islesboro is visiting her grandparents, Col. and Mrs. Fred Atwood. Miss Mary E. Chase returned last week from her visit to Billerica, Mass. Mrs. M. A. Snow is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Louise Davis, in Somerville, Mass. Mr. George Howland left for Boston on Monday's boat. The W. C. T. U. held a very interesting memorial service for their departed sister, Mrs. James Freeman, at their meeting Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Charles Brier, who was operated on for appendicitis, continues to improve. The Colored Concert Co. from the steamer Penobscot have postponed their concert, which was to have been given last week, to Saturday evening, Nov. 6th. Mr. James Grant has bought the Otis Bowden house on Commercial St. and will soon move his family into it. Mr. and Mrs. Berryman of Portland spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Moody. Mrs. Ellen Dennis, who is canvassing the town for her book of poems, is stopping with Mrs. J. C. Carleton. Mr. Fleamant, of Newburg, visited his brother, Edwin Fleamant, recently. Mr. Samuel Atwood has returned from his hunting trip.

LIBERTY. It is getting to be decidedly fishy in this vicinity, not from the taking out, but by the putting of fish into Georges Lake. Last Wednesday J. O. Johnson went to Clinton and got six cans of small salmon, left there by order of Fish Commissioner Carleton for this lake. Friday A. E. Sanford went to Thorndike and got sixteen cans of fish that came from the U. S. Hatchery at Green Lake; and more are expected. Dr. C. C. Whitecomb and A. C. Crockett, officers of the Fish and Game Association here, are uniting in their efforts to stock our ponds with fish and are succeeding beyond expectations. The spawning season for salmon is about to begin, and experts have been engaged to strip the fish. It is confidently expected that our little hatchery will be utilized to its utmost capacity this season. L. L. Prescott is in Portland on business. There has been a general brightening up of the village with the paint brush this fall. The absence of good eating apples puts many of us to our trumps to entertain company. At a small whist party the other evening the treat was raw carrots—a decided improvement on poor, wormy apples. G. H. Cargill, our new postmaster, has taken charge of the office. The thanks of the community are due to A. J. Skidmore for the satisfactory manner in which he performed the duties of that office for the past four years.

PROSPECT. The quarries in Prospect and vicinity are employing a goodly number of men now and business is better. Nine hours is a day's work on stone and most of the Prospect stone-workers board at home, some as far away as five miles. We saw after the day's work was done last week some 12 teams, with from two to three men each, and among the number were some good stepping horses and some not very careful driving, for nearly everybody calculated to come in ahead. Prospect is badly located on the outside of South Branch river for many of the Prospect workers. Some of them have to drive 3 and 4 miles farther to get around the stream. On the Waldo and Mosquito mountain quarries there are fully 400 men at work now, and potatoes, apples, garden truck and beans, and everything that is raised on a farm here, is disappearing. The boarding-houses must have the feed. We have run a garden truck team for several years and just now is busy times. Two hay presses are at work in town. One is the F. G. White press and puts up a smaller bale. The cisterns are giving out here and some of the wells are dry. Will George is hauling his pressed hay from two farms to Seasport. Mr. George is closing out everything. He has sold his farm and is going to Massachusetts. O. B. Gray is clearing up the taxes. J. F. Libby has a good stock of goods and his trade has largely increased. Everybody who wants a job in town now can get it on the quarries. Prospect has two nearby quarries, Mt. Waldo and Mosquito Mountain, besides two small quarries, the Carnes and Bachelor quarries on the Point. And when the Heagan mountain quarry is worked another year, if it is, business will boom.

F. E. Crowley will go to Augusta next week to take charge of the Standard Oil Co.'s business in Augusta, Gardiner and Hallowell.

SOUTH MONTVILLE. L. Cooper and C. E. Gilman have re-shingled their barns. Herbert Howes has gone to South L. berty to finish the church. Alice Proctor has returned from Burketville, where she has been at work. Fred Eastman is at home from Rockport, where he has been cooping. O. W. Ripley has built another story onto his bay window. B. F. Knowles has re-shingled his barn, and Fred Griffin has re-shingled his house. Eva Ripley called Oren Sunday, who was at the barn, and told him there was a big dog going into the hen house. He ran out and found it was a deer. It was very tame and stood within a few feet and looked him over and then loped off. We were very sorry to see another fire in our sister village, Liberty, last Sunday evening. The rain began to fall Monday morning and is welcomed by all. Wells are low and it has been too dry for some time to plow.

UNITY. Miss Helen Thomas went to Portland Oct. 27th to attend the Commercial college. Mr. S. Bennett, who drives the stage to Bangor, has moved into the house owned by Win Clark. STOCKTON SPRINGS. Miss Clara Mudgett visited friends in Swanville, several days the past week. Mrs. R. A. Simmons returned Monday from Hallowell, where she had been the past week with her sister, Mrs. Martin, who is dangerously ill. Mr. Russell Goodhue returned to Boston on Monday. Mrs. James Treat went to Boston Monday to visit her daughter, Mrs. Weston Doe. Quite a large number were in attendance at the large Friday evening. A very good program was given, followed by a fine collation. Ten new names were presented.

SANDYPOINT. Mrs. Frances French and Mrs. Abbie Nickerson left by boat Thursday for Boston for the winter. Mrs. Henry French has returned to her home in Kansas City. Mrs. Cora Plummer is in Boston for a while. The school in this district, taught by Miss Addie Crockett of this town, closed Oct. 26th after a pleasant term of eight weeks. Miss Maud Ginn is in Seasport for the winter. Mrs. Meranda Black has opened her knitting shop and has work on hand to last the remainder of the year. Mr. E. S. Patterson and son Pierce leave this week for Katabdin, where they have employment. Sch. Henry Whitney brought a cargo of coal for Capt. B. F. Rice this week. Many in this vicinity have to haul water for family use. Wells and cisterns have failed; that never failed before. The weather has been very warm and pleasant for season. Buttercups, apple and strawberry blossoms were picked the last days of October.

TROY. There was a quiet home wedding at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis B. Harding last Sunday, when their daughter, Lucena B. Harding, was wedded to Mr. Charles S. Loring of Boston, Mass. Rev. E. S. Burrill performed the ceremony in the presence of the immediate relatives of the bride and groom. Miss Harding was one of our most highly esteemed young ladies and will be greatly missed by all. The newly wedded couple left on the evening train for Boston, where they will reside. They carry with them the best wishes of their many friends for future happiness and prosperity. Mrs. Caroline Piper, the eldest lady in town, is in very poor health. Mr. Albin Piper and Master Frank Piper have just returned from a visit in Rockland. Mrs. Sarah J. Stevens is visiting friends in Waterville and Lewiston. Mrs. M. C. Parsons has gone to Augusta for a few weeks. The Troy Corner Reading Club will meet with Mr. and Mrs. David Piper Friday evening, Nov. 5th. Mr. Benniah Harding is visiting relatives in Portland, Detroit and Carmel. David Piper's face is radiant with his new teeth. Dr. Whitcomb, the dentist, is to be congratulated. He is having lots of work and meeting with good success. Quite a number of members of the C. E. Society went to Unity Oct. 30th to meet with the societies in Unity and Freedom. The convention was held in the Friends' church in Unity. A pleasant time was reported. B. F. Harding will close a term of High school in Burnham, Nov. 5th.

BROOKS. Mrs. Fannie Twombly is at home for a short rest for the first time since the first of August. Her duties as professional nurse keep her almost constantly occupied. Some weeks since, C. E. Lane, who has served five terms as Chief Templar of the Good Templar Lodge, treated the lodge to a nice lunch, with coffee, etc. After recess Miss Lottie Edwards of Winthrop, daughter of Samuel Edwards, formerly of this town, who spent several weeks here with her aunt, Mrs. James Grover, entertained the lodge with some excellent readings. She has made a specialty of elocution and is called something rather nice. E. O. Stantial and wife went to Augusta last week to attend the funeral of Mrs. James Howard, who was a resident of this town some twenty years ago. Charles E. Bowen is shingling and otherwise improving his place, formerly known as the Doctor Libby stand. We have been waiting some weeks for our water works and are getting desperate, for the streets are all drying up and winter is close upon us. Our friend Isaac G. Reynolds of South Brooks has the best Hampshire Down lamb in the State of Maine. It was born in March last and Mr. Reynolds obtained three premiums on him at the State Fair in Lewiston. It is estimated that he will weigh 165 lbs. at the present time; and that his old buck will weigh 300 lbs. and he is now three years old. Mr. Reynolds flock of sheep has been widely advertised through his attendance at the county and State fairs and he has sold several lambs for stock purposes since the fair, and has even had calls for them from outside the State. Miss Grace E. Dow, at the Castine Normal School, has finished the course in bookkeeping without an error marked against her. C. E. Lane has returned from his Aroostook trip. Master Millard Chase of Coburn Classical Institute spent last Sunday here at home. The Good Templar lodge is having some good entertainments and will be more of an interesting coming winter. Ira W. Bowden and wife spent last week with friends in Augusta. Dr. Prince E. Luce has opened a private hospital at what was formerly the Meadow Brook Stock Farm, but which is now called Elmwood Retreat. W. H. Hamlin is to move onto the Ella Springer place and Rufus Ward will board with him. Mrs. Springer is to move to Belfast. Miss Marion York, who has been very ill from the effects of an operation for appendicitis, is convalescing rapidly. Her nurse, Miss McLaughlin of the Maine General Hospital, Portland, has returned home. Mrs. Pamela Penney has returned from a long visit to her daughter, Mrs. Caro Blaisdell, of Connecticut. Some seventy-five people were out last Sunday evening to listen to Rev. F. S. Dollif's talk, and they were well repaid for their trouble. We noticed but few, however, from outside the village limits. Why don't you come in? A disgusting feature of last Sunday evening was a young fellow intoxicated near the church corner. If parties are still putting out liquor here it will pay them to stop it.
